Construction Industry Environmental Forum Knowledge base 1992 - 2001

The CIEF helps companies involved in construction improve their environmental and sustainability performance. It provides a unique opportunity to network with construction and environment professionals in a cross-industry forum.

CIEF activities include:

- workshops – to introduce topical issues and facilitate knowledge exchange
- conferences and seminars – highlighting the benefits and implications of current best practice
- site visits – demonstrating the practical application of sustainable construction on exemplar projects
- best practice guidance – occasional research reports on environmental issues
- briefing papers summarising legislation, business benefits, case studies and good practice
- CIEF bulletins – news, industry initiatives, research and CIEF activities
- CIEF website – updates of CIEF activities and on-line event registration

This CIEF Knowledge base brings together reports from CIEF workshops held between 1992 and 2001

Comprising more than 170 notes, over 1800 pages of text, the Knowledge Base provides an invaluable reference source on all matters relating to construction and the environment and supports:

- full text searching
- chronological and topic index
- printing and copying
- Searching

For convenience, notes are arranged both by date and by the following topics:

- Case studies
- Contaminated Land
- Design
- Energy
- Legislation, regulation and policy
- Materials
- Nature conservation
- Re-use and recycling
- Site management issues
- Supply chain
- Sustainable Development / Construction
- Transport, Land Use and Planning
- Tools
- Waste management
- Water management
